Virtual Tour | Apply Now

Dear Sarah,

I'm James—a current third-year student at SGU. I remember being in the exact position you're in now: full of goals in medicine, but really uncertain about the best way to achieve them. There's so much conflicting information, and seemingly no truly knowledgeable, objective source of information.

I'm in the process of fulfilling my dreams, but I know how overwhelming it seems. Everyone has opinions and some of them are scary.

- Should I get a master's degree and try again for US schools?
- I don't know if a Caribbean school will get me to a residency.
- Is it hard to study medicine in another country?

Everyone has different answers for these questions, but I can tell you my point of view. It might help.

To start, 93% of last year's US eligible graduates from SGU obtained residencies by one year out—85% in the graduation year. SGU's graduates secured 930 residencies in total for 2018—more than any medical school in the world.

I'd like to speak with you to share more insight on my experience here. I can also put you in touch with other students or graduates who can help you with your important decision.

Please feel free to give me a call at 1 (800) 899-6337 ext. 1478 or text TEXTSGU to 484848 to send me a message. I know your time is valuable, so if it's better for me to call you, let me know what time best fits your schedule.

I look forward to connecting with you and am excited to be part of your future career in medicine!

Thanks!

James
3rd-year MD student
