

St. George's University
THINK BEYOND

Request Information Information Sessions Apply Now

Work Closely With Your Teachers: Faculty and Animals

At St. George's University, we believe the best learning engages your head and your hands. Our 5-to-1 student-faculty ratio ensures more personal attention for you. And unlike many US schools, you'll work with animals early and often at our on-campus Small Animal Clinic, Large Animal Facility, and at clinical affiliates around the world. It's the training you need—with the teachers you want.

Learn More

Apply Now

School of Veterinary Medicine Overview

Learn about St. George's University School of Veterinary Medicine, located in Grenada, West Indies. SGU's state-of-the-art facilities and support services work with students to help them achieve their dreams of becoming veterinarians.

School of Veterinary Medicine "Hands-On"

St. George's University School of Veterinary Medicine students have the advantage of hands-on experience with animals early on in their education, offering unique clinical opportunities often not seen elsewhere until the final year of veterinary medical school.

© St. George's University, 2015

Grenada, West Indies

US/Canada: 1 (800) 899-6337 • International: +1 (631) 665-8500

www.sgu.edu/dvm • sguenrolment@sgu.edu

unsubscribe | view in browser